Boston Mayor Raymond L. Flynn, Parks Commissioner Lawrence A. Dwyer and local residents celebrated the official opening of Wainwright Park in Dorchester last Sunday, according to Parks Regional Administrator Bill Stoddard.

Pictured here is Mayor Flynn along with park partners Martha Loesch (L) and Bill Loesch (R) who presented Flynn with a plaque from the community in appreciation for the improvements at Wainwright Park.

Renovations to Wainwright Park, which totaled $150,000 were funded by Mayor Flynn's 5-year, $1.01 billion capital improvement plan. "Rebuilding Boston," administered by the Office of Capital Planning. Improvements include installation of new metal play equipment, a half basketball court, seating, tree and shrub plantings, and general site improvements.
